That link goes to a directory page that lists personal trainers who are (sometimes very confusingly) tagged as “lynnwood, washington” but are actually scattered all over the U.S., often with non-WA ZIP codes and city descriptions in their blurbs. In other words, it is not a clean list of trainers who truly operate in Lynnwood, WA itself.[1][2]

What that page is actually useful for

- It shows example trainer profiles (name, specialties like Strength building, bodybuilding, weight loss, rehab, yoga, kickboxing, virtual training, etc.).[2][1]
- Many of the trainers are “mobile” or “virtual” and serve wide areas or work online, so a few might be usable to you even though their listed ZIPs are in other states.[1][2]
- The site itself is just a general trainer directory that you can search by state, city, or ZIP, not a Lynnwood-specific organization.[3][^1_11]

If you’re actually trying to find a trainer in Lynnwood, WA

You’ll get more accurate local options by:

- Using the site’s fitness search for “Lynnwood, WA” (which surfaces names like Sharon Madsen, Jeff Turner, Linda Lee, Eddie Barruga, Brian Duncan tied specifically to Lynnwood, WA).[4][5]
- Checking other directories that index trainers by actual Lynnwood addresses or nearby gyms (e.g., local training studios and big gyms in Lynnwood show up on review sites with 98087 and similar ZIPs).[6][7]

If you tell me what you want (e.g., bodybuilding/contest prep vs. rehab vs. general weight loss, in-person vs. online), I can help you narrow down the type of trainer and screening questions to use when you contact them.

It mentions caglar Singletary has helped countless too

On that directory, the Caglar Singletary blurb is marketing copy: it says his personalized training “has helped countless” people (or “clients”) as a way to emphasize experience and results, but it doesn’t give verifiable numbers or details about who those people are or what “countless” means in practice. In other words, it’s meant to signal that he has worked with a lot of clients, not to document a specific statistic.[11]

Which locations does Caglar Singletary serve

There is no reliable public information that clearly lists which locations Caglar Singletary serves as a trainer or coach. Most references describe him in terms of background (Kenpo black belt, bodybuilder, etc.) rather than giving a concrete service area, so any specific list of cities or regions would be speculative.[19][20]
